

SUNDAY SERVICE NOTES FOR MAY 2017

Sunday, May 7

"Rooting Our Advocacy in Our Faith"
Worship Associate

Alex Shanks of Equality Ohio
Melissa Jeter

"The arc of the moral universe is long, but it bends toward justice" - Theodore Parker. Many faith traditions draw their followers to a life of advocacy and justice, kinship and charity. When we root our advocacy in our faith we have a source of balance and wisdom that can guide us in our search for justice.

Music Notes: This morning's service music has two highlights: The Chalice Choir's anthem is Ed Robertson's "Let Love Come Near" with its message that "love has a way of making life worthwhile" for those who are sad and lonely. The service ends with Alfred Fedak's "Where My Free Spirit Leads," inspired by the hymn of the same title with his confident, marching rhythm.

Sunday, May 14

"The Family Way"
Worship Associate

Reverend Tim Barger
Tom Sheehan

On Mother's Day, a look at families of blood, of choice, of organizations, of congregations.

Music Notes: Johannes Brahms "Waltz" starts our service off in a reflective mood, setting the stage for Elizabeth Alexander's "Where There is Light in the Soul," which expresses in music an ancient thought that harmony in the nation ultimately leads back to individual character and to the nature of the home—an appropriate thought for Mother's Day. The Gathering presents the traditional, "Bright Morning Stars," and "Festive Proclamation" sends us out of the service on a happy note.

Sunday, May 21

"289.1"
Worship Associate

Reverend Tim Barger
Luanne Billstein

On the Sunday of his installation, Rev. Tim talks about Melvil Dewey, order, and Unitarian Universalism.

At 4 pm -- Rev. Tim's installation, with Rev. Don Southworth, the executive director of the Unitarian Universalist Ministers Association, preaching.

Music Notes: The Chalice Choir's anthem, "Waitin' for the Light to Shine," is an arrangement of Huck Finn's solo from the Broadway show, Big River. In the piece, Huck thinks about how his life is suffocatingly circumscribed and hopes that someday he'll find meaning for his existence. The service begins with a lyrical prelude, "The Garden Walk," and ends with the energetic postlude, Anthony Giamonco's "Trumpet Tune."

Sunday, May 28

"Wearing White"
Worship Associate

Reverend Tim Barger
Lynn Lyle

Flower Communion combines with Memorial Day weekend and the unofficial start of summer to give fashionable attention to our congregation.

Music Notes: This morning's prelude features our own oboist extraordinaire, Bonnie Rowe, playing "Gabriel's Oboe" from Ennio Marriconi's The Mission. During the service we'll hear Aaron David Miller's "Everliving Source of Us All," a commissioned anthem composed specifically for our Chalice Choir, and an Ysaye Barnwell composition, "Breaths," presented by The Gathering. The service ends on an appropriately springlike note with Samuel Wellman's "Thy Word is like a Garden, Lord."

Terry Acocks, Board President

Locally, we will celebrate Reverend Tim's installation on May 21st. Please join us, your friends, in this joyful and meaningful ritual. Nationally, the UUA continues the process of addressing how our association does and does not exemplify our principles, particularly in the area of racial justice and systemic white supremacy. The June General Assembly in New Orleans will be a rich and deep experience, and will include the election of the next UUA President. TEALL is offering two $1000 scholarships. Thank you, TEALL. Internationally, Unitarians also engage in important works that we may know nothing about. For example, we just learned about a Unitarian

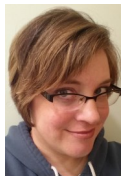

Universalist orphanage in Kharang Meghalaya, India through their garden project on Faithify, which is a fundraising method available through the UUA. The Faithify project was fully funded through small donations and is now closed, though donations can be made separately to the orphanage. 8,000 plus members of the Unitarian Union of Northeast India run 34 schools and the orphanage. If you want to know more, see: <http://beyonyourdoorstep.blogspot.com/2012/12/the-kashi-hills-unitarian-child.html> and <http://icuu.net/>. In Fellowship, Terry Acocks

As if I haven't already officially been "on the job" as your minister, we'll have a formal ritual in an installation service at 4 pm May 21 so we can celebrate with the greater Toledo and area Unitarian Universalist communities. Rev. Don Southworth, the executive director of the Unitarian Universalist Ministers Association, will preach, and we'll have plenty of ceremony to make for grand atmosphere. Then we'll have some catered food afterward, but it's potluck for the desserts. All are invited.

Many of you have heard me speak in a service, or have read in online media, about the Unitarian Universalist Association's efforts to be in better relationship with our principles about worth, dignity, and the beloved community. There has been a national call to hold a teach-in about white supremacy. After looking at the schedule and considering when we might give focused attention to institutional, systemic, and individual racism, I didn't see the opportunity to change our plans for a Sunday in the spring to have the teach-in. Instead, I plan to make the teach-in materials available, such as by way of links on our social media, and examine race, racism, white privilege, and white supremacy in Unitarian Universalism and in our communities in the fall. But let's not wait to talk about it more informally in the spring and summer. Your Minister, Reverend Tim

Nicole Jonsson, Religious Educator

Exciting things are happening at First UU! In the coming months you may see some new garden plots out back. Our church recently won a grant to trial some different types of native vegetation and low-mow grasses to possibly scale-up to cover the back two acres of our lot. Interested in donating some time to help? Let me know! In Fellowship, Nicole Jonsson, Acting Religious Educator

GRANT RECEIVED!

First UU of Toledo received a $1000.00 grant from the Toledo Lucas County Sustainability Commission! The money will be used to create six different test plots of low-mow grasses and types of native vegetation. We're interested in looking at options to cover the back two acres of our lot that are environmentally friendly and attractive to the neighborhood.

BLANKET MAKING

Spring has brought us a change in weather and a change in a familiar group's name as well. F.O.C.U.S and Beach House have now combined under the name "LEADING FAMILIES HOME". What hasn't changed is the group's need for blankets for welcoming baskets given to the families as they are placed in their new homes. So as usual, there will be a blanket-making workshop for "LEADING FAMILIES HOME" on this month's fourth Wednesday, May 24, in Fellowship Hall at 9:30 am. All are welcome. Bring sharp scissors and a smile. Contact Mary with questions. mjjobbmom@bex.net

EQUALITY OHIO

Equality Ohio will offer "Becoming Faithfully Inclusive" at First Unitarian Church of Toledo Friday, May 5, through Sunday, May 7. A weekend of faith trainings focused on including lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and intersex people, as well as gender non-binary and other individuals in congregational activity. The activities will include different workshops – attend any or all – and Alex Shanks, Equality Ohio's faith organizer, will give the sermon at the 11 am service Sunday, May 7. All are invited.

NEW UU SERIES

In May, your Compass Hospitality and Membership committee will host workshop #5 of The New UU series. This workshop provides an overview of congregational polity and covenant, the foundational principles upon which UU congregations are gathered and continue to exist as institutions. It will focus not on the mechanics of congregational structure and governance, but, rather the spiritual underpinnings of those structures, highlighting the role and importance of membership in a congregation. Although the curriculum is designed for newcomers to our church, all are invited and encouraged to attend. We will meet in the Youth Room at 1pm on May 28th after potluck. Please RSVP to lanielec@yahoo.com so that we can be sure to bring enough materials for everyone.
